

Create Something in Sweden

Create something global

A dynamic group of international artists

A beautiful European setting

An intercultural exchange like no other

Work side-by-side with European-trained artists to create an interdisciplinary arts production in this two-week summer course offered by Nova Southeastern University's Fischler School of Education and Human Services. This unforgettable European adventure provides the opportunity to explore the arts, education, and culture in beautiful Sweden.

This course runs in conjunction with a cultural exchange workshop for Swedish and American teenagers in the beautiful coastal village of Oskarshamn, presented by the Lovewell Institute for the Creative Arts. Lovewell stresses creative problem solving, critical thinking, and authentic experience as students work together to create an original interdisciplinary arts production in just two weeks. Under the guidance of an empowering team of Swedish and American artist-teachers, young creators brainstorm ideas, write their own characters and scripts, compose songs, choreograph dances, and assist with costuming, set design, lighting, and the recording of the cast album.

The methodology behind the Lovewell Institute for the Creative Arts programs has been nationally recognized as a prime example of "best practices" in arts education and social action, and has been designated by the U.S. President's Committee on the Arts and Humanities as one of the nation's most effective arts education programs. This experiential approach to a common goal creates a fertile learning environment and an educational opportunity that stimulates many learning styles, especially in this highly aesthetic international setting. The International Arts and Culture Infusion summer course in Sweden facilitates expansive and creative thinking in students, artists, teachers, and schools and ultimately ripples out to help create a true international cultural community.
